Our Weekly Diagnosis of Dangerous Diseases—The Early Symptoms of Consumption—The Study of the "Electric Ghosts."

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION.
Now that the value of the open-air treatment of consumption has been demonstrated, the great importance of an early diagnosis of the disease is evident. Unfortunately, it is by no means easy to recognize the disease in its incipency, for the early symptoms are not distinctive, and the cause of the failing health is often not suspected until the disease has become firmly established. The symptoms calling attention especially to disease of the lungs are generally late in appearing, and the physician's suspicions will usually have been aroused long before there is any severe cough or profuse expectoration. At first there is merely a falling off in health; the person is "a little below par," and his friends remark that he is losing flesh. He is not actually ill, and his condition causes him little anxiety, being attributed to a rush of work, or to worryment caused by a business hitch or some family trouble. But as time goes on and the supposed cause of the trouble has been removed, the patient does not recover his strength; on the contrary, the gradual decline continues and a noticeable pallor appears. The lips are bluish, the eyes are abnormally white, the pinkish hue of the nails fade out, the mucous membrane of the mouth is pale—in medical language, the patient is anemic. This pallor is a suspicious sign; another symptom of marked significance is a rapid pulse, one that beats continuously ninety or one hundred times a minute. At this time there is usually also, more or less fever, although it may be so slight as to be detected only
